

Fernando Pessoa

Men such as I was on earth never knew fear.

Men such as I was on earth never knew fear. I was one of the strongest, of the most courageous. I know not therefore how to describe the fears that came to me; for a strong man's fear was a new thing on earth (as ye will think), and a strong man's fear is of all fears the horriblest and most maddening (...) and intensified by the hideous newness of the sensation.
